THE FUTURE IS HERE WITH TITUS VR

Virtual Reality has been around for years in the video game industry creating new worlds for gamers to explore. The technology's potential for training has never truly been tested before until now.

Titus VR is the latest innovation to hit the HVAC industry and allows us to showcase Titus products, services and teach complete systems from a whole new perspective. With the ability to transport viewers into any building space to see how systems work, our VR will transform how HVAC industry professionals experience training. Imagine fully understanding an occupied space and the system designed to provide the comfort – it's potential, limitations and inner workings – before it's even built. That's the reality of VR - the virtual world can create so many possibilities where the only limitation is your imagination.
